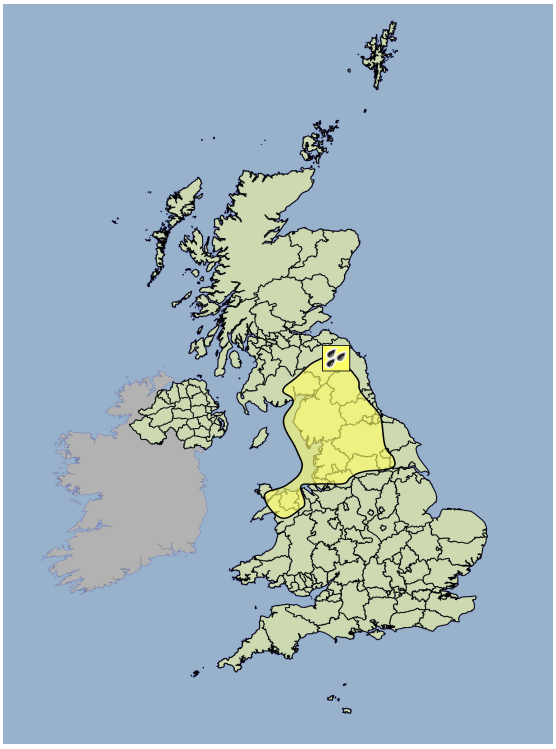
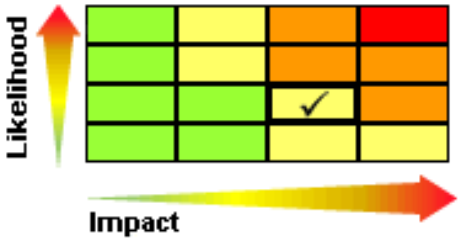
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Rain, persistent and heavy at times, will continue at times through the rest of Boxing Day with a further 30 to 50 mm in places - for a while the rain band moves north into Cumbria, before clearing southwards late today.

Despite continuing uncertainties in frontal position and therefore rainfall amounts, evidence suggests that rainfall may be sufficient to cause localised medium levels of disruption due to flooding, but with these more widespread and higher impacts likely to be seen within the accompanying Amber and Red Warning areas.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 11:15 on Sat, 26th Dec 2015 until 23:45 on Sat, 26th Dec 2015

Outbreaks of rain will continue to affect parts of north Wales, northern England and southern Scotland through the rest of Boxing Day, though easing off at times across parts of the Yellow warning area. Please be aware of the potential for flooding and some disruption to transport. Over southern Scotland the likelihood of medium impacts remains very low.

This update is to draw attention to the fact that Amber and Red warnings within the Yellow warning area, have recently been issued or updated.
